About Us

“ Few things are more refreshing than stepping into an air conditioned room on a hot, summer’s day. But just what exactly is happening inside your office or home to keep it cool? “

A building’s air conditioning is part of a larger system commonly referred to as its heating, ventilation, and air conditioning system (or HVAC for short). Your office's or home’s HVAC system is essentially an expansive machine consisting of a ventilation system, thermostat, and various devices that either heat or cool the air.
